Processed words poetry is a type of poetry that uses words that have been taken from other sources and rearranged to create new poems. The goal of processed words poetry is to create new meanings and insights by juxtaposing words and phrases in unexpected ways.

Techniques of Processed Words Poetry

There are a variety of techniques that can be used to create processed words poetry. Some of the most common techniques include:

- Creating unity: Another challenge of processed words poetry is creating unity. The poem should have a beginning, middle, and end, and the words should flow together in a logical and cohesive way.

Benefits of Processed Words Poetry

Despite the challenges, processed words poetry can offer a number of benefits to poets and readers alike. Some of the benefits include:

- New perspectives: Processed words poetry can help poets to see the world in new ways. By using words from different sources, poets can break free from their own preconceptions and explore new ideas and perspectives.
