In "Ode to a Distant Love," the poet yearns for a connection that transcends time and distance:

Across oceans vast, I cast my gaze, Seeking solace in distant rays. My heartstrings twang, a melody of longing, For a love that sets my soul longing.

Limbachiya's poems also explore the complexities of unrequited love, such as in "Unrequited Flame":

*In chambers of my heart, a flame resides, A flicker of hope that love abides.
But destiny plays cruel, a bitter jest, For my affections remain unblest.*

Yet, amidst the pain of unfulfilled love, Limbachiya's poems offer glimmers of resilience and hope. In "Survivor," he celebrates the strength of the human spirit:

RESILIENCE

Perseverance no matter what the odds

*Battered by life's relentless storms, I rise, a survivor, arms transformed.
Though scars adorn my weary frame, My spirit soars, aflame with flame.*
